

The University of Utah Endowed Beverley Taylor Sorenson Arts Learning Program Fellowship Description

Deadline for submission to the Arts Education Committee: April 1

Top applicants will be interviewed by the Arts Education Committee and notified before April 30

Mission:

- To strengthen and increase arts education research, practice, and advocacy.
 - To support and encourage pedagogical development as well as creative and/or scholarly research activities of outstanding graduate students in the College of Fine Arts (CFA) as they pertain to the field of arts education.

Description: The Endowed Beverley Taylor Sorenson Arts Learning Program (BTSALP) Fellowship is awarded to select outstanding graduate students in the CFA who are passionate about furthering the field of arts education both in research and in practice. Applicants must provide strong evidence of school or community-based pedagogical experience working with young people and educators in grades K-12. Funding of $8120 for up to two years.

Endowed BTSALP Fellowship responsibilities may include (but are not limited to):

- Teach arts integrated curricula such as FA 4000, as well as for ArtsLINK, CFA's annual Arts Integration Conference.
 - Assist with the implementation of BTSALP professional learning opportunities for classroom teachers and specialists.
 - Assist faculty with community-engaged research.
 - Engage in research and teaching that support the applicant's interest and field of study.
 - Support Art Works for Kids, including BTSALP promotion/arts advocacy and program-specific research studies.

Submission:

- Application materials should be submitted to kelby.mcintyre@utah.edu on or before April 1.
 - The CFA Arts Education Committee will evaluate the proposals and announce the award before April 30.
